Purpose

- On October 21-22, 2014, Stephen Bolton (Director of Inland Enforcement Management Program) undertook an AVRR International Monitoring Trip in Bogota, Colombia.
- The purpose was to review the delivery / administration of reintegration assistance and to assess its overall effectiveness and viability. Findings of this trip will be compared with the information collected during the first International Monitoring Trip in fall 2013 (Hungary and the Czech Republic) to identify common issues and needs, successes and possible trends. Meetings were also scheduled with representatives from the Ministry of Foreign Affairs and the Ministry of Labour on their activities related to migration returns.
- As a key partner in the AVRR pilot program, the International Organization for Migration (IOM) actively participated in the monitoring process by attending interviews and discussions.

Background

- Between June 2012 and October 2014, 3,779 clients departed Canada under the AVRR pilot program, and the top five countries include:
 - Hungary (1,750)
 - Colombia (352)
 - Croatia (221)
 - Czech Republic (153)
 - Slovak Republic (147)
- The CBSA's pilot program is the largest program sector within IOM Bogota's business lines.
- As the second largest participant source country, the monitoring trip focused on Colombian returnees and the trip objectives included reviewing a minimum of 25% (88) of files and interviewing five clients.
- The interviews conducted focused on:
 - AVRR Clients:
 - What interested you to the program?
 - Did you understand what steps you needed to take once you arrived in your home country?
 - Did the amount facilitate your reintegration?
 - IOM Staff:
 - What steps do you (IOM) take to actualize the reintegration plan?
 - What service level standards are in place for the AVRR program and how are they assessed?

Client and IOM Staff Interviews: findings

AVRR Clients

- Most clients felt that it was their obligation to leave Canada when informed of their negative determination. Only one person indicated an interest to return to Canada through a different immigration stream, which bodes well for sustainability.
- None of those interviewed required IOM Bogota's reception upon arrival as all five cases had relatives who met them at the airport, nor did they lack social / support networks on the onset.
- One gentleman was clearly an economic migrant (professionally a saddle maker).
- Another gentleman was somewhat depressed as he continued to struggle with finding employment despite his English language skills after having resided in the United States prior to making a refugee claim in Canada. His wife is also contending with a debilitating medical condition which is an overall stressor for the family.
- One woman (a social worker), who returned with her young son, was reluctant to take reintegration assistance; she eventually invested it in a small business venture.
- They all expressed gratitude for the financial benefits of AVRR, however, there was not strong evidence that it was genuinely needed. One gentleman was dismayed that only 50% of reintegration assistance could be used toward rent/housing.

General Feedback (from AVRR Clients)

- Those interviewed genuinely believed it was their duty to abide by Canadian law by respecting the negative determination of their refugee claim. As importantly, they didn't feel right remaining in Canada given their situation, and in fact, felt unwelcomed after the decision was rendered.
- They conveyed that the financial incentive was a significant element in their decision to enroll in AVRR, and found reintegration assistance useful to re-start their lives in Colombia.
- They expressed that the IOM, in Toronto and Bogota, was helpful although nearly all of them were still looking for stable work.
- Four out of five interviewed claimed that they did not care for the enforcement element in the AVRR process, meaning the CBSA. More telling was that they equated the CBSA with "immigration" (Citizenship and Immigration Canada) when prompted or reminded by the IOM of CBSA's mandate.
- Most mentioned the need for a more robust AVRR outreach and communications strategy, e.g., using various mediums, languages and venues; the pilot program was simply not visible to the target audience.

Recommendations for Going Forward

- Develop a focused voluntary return program for countries that align with the CBSA's enforcement mandate, and use it to strengthen relations with difficult to remove countries by addressing their concerns with the reintegration of their returning nationals with criminal history and/or mental health issues.
- Redirect the future program to difficult to remove cases and leverage this with the CBSA's challenge in obtaining travel documents as well as securing Readmission Arrangements with certain countries.
- The reintegration package should effectively improve the participation rate and also ensure a sustainable return to the extent possible.

- Market the future program via comprehensive channels / mediums, and at various stages of the immigration continuum.
- Provision of information upon arrival is as vital as information about the program itself which would be handled by the contracted service provider or local government. This could encompass:
 - Post-arrival orientation / assessment
 - Housing and banking information
 - Employment counselling and job searches
 - Health or medical check up
 - School registration and training / apprenticeship
 - Special needs services

Macdonald Cartier International Airport; Traveller Processing; Northern Ontario Region

Due to severe weather in Toronto and Montreal the Pearson International Airport and Pierre-Elliott Trudeau International Airport are on 'red alert', forcing incoming flights to be diverted to Macdonald Cartier International Airport (MCIA) in Ottawa. Approximately 50 flights (domestic and international) were circling the airport waiting to land. The weather cleared quickly allowing flights to resume their originate flight path without having to land and offload passengers. (D1001892)

Pearson International Airport: GTAR

At approximately 1715 EDT, the CBSA received a telephone call from Greater Toronto Area Airport (GTAA) regarding a disturbance on flight AC 962, destined for Bogota, Colombia. On that flight, some gas fumes were causing comments from the passengers, including a Colombian national that was being deported under escort by two CBSA officers from Pacific Region Enforcement (PREC). Flight attendants stated that the subject said "I do not want to die" in Spanish, and that some passengers were complaining about this remark.

The flight was cancelled and rescheduled. The crew were no longer going to work on the flight because they were at their time limit and one crew member openly refused to work the flight with the deportee on board. Air Canada claimed that the flight was cancelled solely because of the deportee's remark, although the aircraft did have some mechanical problems. Several other outbound flights were also cancelled because of bad weather.

GTAR BSO's escorted the subject and the two removal officers to the immigration office whereupon the subject was placed in one of the holding cells. At approximately 1900 EDT the passenger was moved to the Toronto West detention facility. The removal is rescheduled for August 01, 2012 on Lacs flight LR 0621, departing at 1045 EDT. (E1043444)

POE Douglas; Pacific Region

On July 31, 2012, at 1700 PDT, border wait times at Douglas POE were being reported on the WSDOT (Washington State Department of Transportation) website at 75 minutes. The port had five regular lanes open for processing as well as two NEXUS lanes. The majority of traffic volume was Canadian residents returning from day travel and Americans entering for tourism. By 1915 PDT the wait times had decreased to 45 minutes. (D1001893)

INTELLIGENCE AND TARGETING OPERATIONS | OPÉRATIONS RELATIVES AU RENSEIGNEMENT ET AU CIBLAGE

1. On July 23, 2012, customs officers at Zurich airport seized approximately 5.5 kilos of heroin from a male citizen of Canada arriving from Nairobi.

Pacific Regional Intelligence, with the assistance of Intelligence Operations and Analysis Division, continues to identify persons linked to this ongoing threat.

2. CBSA Intelligence is currently aware of a number of cases involving attempted narcotics smuggling from Ecuador. The July 25, 2012 edition of CBSA Today referenced a seizure in Ecuador of 77 kilos of cocaine
3. Swaziland facilitators arrested – The CBSA LO in Pretoria previously identified two facilitators that were involved in the movement of Swazi nationals and brought them to the attention of the Swazi authorities. Interpol Swaziland has now advised that these two individuals have been arrested and are facing 18 counts of human trafficking and people smuggling. A third individual, a Ghanaian national who has been identified as an accomplice, is wanted and is believed to be in Mozambique. Of note, these charges carry a prison term of up to 20 years.

The Migration Intelligence Section within the Intelligence Operations and Analysis Division will continue to monitor this trend for any further developments.

Edmundston Bridge; Atlantic Region

On July 31, 2012, at 1500 ADT, a major fire started at a residential house close to the US CBP port of entry in Madawaska, Maine. Due to the intensity of the fire, the assistance of Canadian firefighters was requested. The local dispatch contacted the US CBP and CBSA in Edmundston in order to facilitate the emergency vehicle traffic on the bridge. At 1655 ADT, traffic was stopped in both directions until the emergency vehicles crossed; the bridge was reopened at 1710 ADT. (E1043437)

Gateway Postal Facility; Greater Toronto Region

On July 31, 2012, at approximately 1500 EDT there was flooding deriving from the floor underneath the primary belts at the International Mail Processing Centre. This resulted in both the east and west belts being shut down. Also, all the computers on the lower floor (6 in total) could not connect with the omega server. IT was contacted and contingencies were put in place to continue processing the mail at a limited capacity by routing it through the EMS cell. As of 1800 EDT, the belts were re-opened after clean up. Once the primary belts resumed operation, the EMS cell was closed, due to IT issues with the workstations there. Local IT is aware of the problem and working toward a solution. (E1043436)

TITAN Expiration of risk indicator 15

The risk indicator 15 (Shipment to a residence) used in TITAN will be expired on August 1, 2012. This change will impact TITAN Air, Marine and US Marine in transit. As of today, CBSA will no longer have an interface in TITAN with TPSD (Telephony and Business Solutions Division) – a service CBSA has been sharing with CRA (Canada Revenue Agency) for many years. With this change TITAN users will no longer have an interface in TITAN that will automatically query addresses and trigger a risk indicator. Users will now have to do manual queries by using the current Info-Direct system that will be supported by CRA until the new system becomes available at the beginning of August 2012. A separate bulletin will be sent to users to advise them on how to access this new system. Included in the bulletin will be a Quick Reference Guide that will explain the new functionality. This new system will also require users to do manual queries. (E1043177)

TRADE OPERATIONS | OPÉRATIONS COMMERCIALES

Pacific Region

An officer in the Pacific Trade Operations Division issued a third level AMP of $900 to an importer for failing to make records available when requested (contravention code C157) during a NAFTA origin verification. The penalty escalation occurred because this importer within the last two years had failed to provide records requested for two origin verifications in the Pacific region and one tariff classification verification in the GTA Region.

The first NAFTA origin verification in 2011 was for apparel goods, which did not qualify for preferential tariff treatment under NAFTA. The second and most recent NAFTA origin verification was initiated this year due to the importer's continued high rate of non-compliance, which resulted in assessments of $100,902 in duties and taxes to the importer.

After a thorough review, the importer failed to respond to repeated attempts of contact by the CBSA and the officer found that the importer had recently closed the business. Accordingly, collection of the monies owed by this importer will now become a matter for CRA Collections.

Cargo 3; Commercial Operations; GTA Region

On July 29, 2012, Officers at the Cargo 3 Commercial Operations Centre at Pearson International Airport came across a shipment of 69 boxes located in the Air Canada warehouse. Inside the pack were three black bricks wrapped with black tape. The officers performed a NIK test on one of the bricks which resulted in positive for suspected Cocaine. RCMP were contacted and informed of the seizure and subsequently took possession of the suspected narcotic. (ICES: 4973-12-1382)

"Bogus" refugee claimants: Reports indicate that Mexican, Hungarian, Colombian and American refugee claimants used Canadian health care services more than any other asylum claimants, supporting the claim that "bogus refugees" are abusing the system. CIC Minister Jason Kenney stated that he's heard stories from CBSA officers who've interviewed Hungarians about why they withdrew their applications. Some he said, came to get free dental care for their kids and planned to leave after they got it.

This instance it is a database query from an LO but forwarded to FPL inbox as it is during regular business hours. Before we wouldn't answer it as INS would. INS has access to this inbox as well. Now we are trying to figure out if we are to answer emails to the FPL inbox during regular business hours as well as after-hours. In essence – are we taking the duty phones 24/7 AND their inbox?

The FPL inbox is also used by foreign Customs to request exams (MLAT's), Interpol, etc.

Hi guys,

We had a Colombian permanent resident of the USA working for American Airlines as crew coming to the Consulate today. He basically said that he needed a letter from the Consulate - some sort of preclearance OK letter - so that he won't have problems next time he flies back to Canada. He explained that at his recent departure (he had entered as crew, to leave the next day), he was given problems at Canadian Customs and told he should get a preclearance letter next time around. I told him Canada does not do exit checks, so that was probably the U.S. CBP preclearance who was requesting him something, perhaps in relation to his own Immigration status in the USA or whatever. But he was adamant that it's "Canadian Customs" that was requesting this. I didn't find anything in GCMS/FOSS (there is a NCB for but with a different cedula#, so not him). As a Green Card holder, he wouldn't require a visa to enter Canada anyway, on top of being crew.

Could you check in ICES or with Customs what could possibly be the problem? I already told him I wouldn't be able to provide him a letter / no authority, but would at least try to direct him.

Thank you,

Hi,

Could you confirm if a Colombian citizen, holding only a Canadian Refugee Travel Document, can travel from abroad to return to Canada? In this particular case, he is NOT yet a permanent resident. It is not clear if he would require a Canadian visa because he is Colombian (which CIC would unlikely grant him), or if with that document alone he is good to travel? I am a bit confused.

Flight leaves in 3 hours.

Thanks,

mc

7.10 Refugee Travel Document

Refugee Travel Documents are prescribed travel documents for boarding commercial carriers to Canada (along with the required visa, if applicable) [R259(b), R259(c), and R259(e)].

They are acceptable for foreign nationals with permanent resident visas seeking to become permanent residents [R50(1)(c)].

These documents are also acceptable for foreign nationals applying for permanent resident status from within Canada [R72(1)(e)(ii)].

He applied for PR inland, but hasn't got it yet...

Refugee Travel Documents are acceptable for foreign nationals with temporary resident visas (if required) seeking to become temporary residents [R52(1)(c)].

Canadian Refugee Travel Documents are issued by the Minister of Foreign Affairs (Passport Canada) and are entitled, "Travel Document (1951 UN Convention relating to the Status of Refugees, 28 July 1951)."

Holders of Canadian Refugee Travel Documents that are valid for return to Canada must be allowed entry to Canada [R39(c)].

How do we know if it is "valid for return"?

Canadian Refugee Travel Documents are prescribed documents for travel to Canada by a commercial carrier [R259(b)].

Canadian Refugee Travel Documents are issued to protected persons. These individuals may also hold permanent resident status or temporary resident permits.

Persons outside Canada with valid Canadian Refugee Travel Documents who are permanent residents without permanent resident cards may apply for and receive, after a positive residency determination, a permanent resident travel document (counterfoil) issued under A31(3), [A31(2)(b) and A31(3)].

So by this should we assume that if he not a PR?, he would still require a visa, which CIC would unlikely grant him

Refugee Travel Documents are issued by a competent authority of a country to persons recognized by that country as protected persons, pursuant to the 1951 UN Convention relating to the Status of Refugees, to facilitate the travel of the holder to other countries. The document prohibits travel to the country from which the holder fled persecution and allows the holder to return to the issuing country within the validity period of the document.

So does that mean he can return to Canada just with that document?

The Canadian Refugee Travel Document is a blue, passport-like, machine-readable booklet with two black diagonal stripes in the upper left corner. It contains the image, tombstone details and signature of the bearer. It is endorsed for travel to all countries, except the holder's country of origin. For persons 16 years of age or older, the Travel Document is valid for two years, with a possible extension for another two years and a second possible extension for one year. For persons newborn to age 15, the validity period is two years, with the possibility of a one-year extension. Shorter validity periods are possible.

The Refugee Travel Documents of other countries are also blue, passport-like documents with two black stripes in the upper left corner. They vary in interior format and some are not machine-readable.

DEPORTATION RULING MAY SET PRECEDENT

The awaited court ruling on the fate of suspected war criminal Leon Mugesera has the potential to change the way international treaties affect Canadian domestic law. If Quebec Superior Court Justice Michel Delorme rules Canada must respect the procedures of the UN Convention Against Torture, then it would set an important precedent, said Fannie Lafontaine. After exhausting all his domestic avenues, Mugesera appealed to the UN Committee Against Torture. The committee then requested the government not deport Mugesera until the UN evaluates the torture risks he faces.

Syria – Update on Voluntary Evacuation

The four week voluntary evacuation exercise ended on January 14, 2012. The Canadian Embassy in Damascus reported that throughout this exercise, the client flow never exceeded the mission's capacity and they were able to maintain steady service to Canadians and their families.

Since December 18, 2011, analysts from the CBSA's National Security Screening Division (NSSD) worked diligently to expedite the screening of cases out of Syria following Foreign Minister Baird's announcement of a voluntary evacuation of the country. Over the past month, NSSD has successfully concluded screening on approximately 226 cases out of Damascus, with a remaining 4 cases staying on hold while NSSD analysts investigate possible security concerns. The CBSA has been informed by the Mission in Damascus that they are currently not accepting new Temporary Resident Visa (TRV) applications, and as such, NSSD will not be receiving any new referrals from Damascus. The NSSD will no longer be reporting on this event.

HUGE RELIEF ' FOR RWANDANS AS MUGESERA IS SENT HOME : PROSECUTOR GENERAL SAYS CITIZENS WATCHED CLOSELY AS GENOCIDE SUSPECT FOUGHT EXTRADITION (Sue Montgomery)

Leon Mugesera was to fly out of Canada headed for the Rwandan capital of Kigali on Monday night after two courts ruled against him Monday. Earlier, a small group of family and friends, including his wife, gathered in the departures area of Pierre-Elliott Trudeau International Airport, hugging and holding each other. CBSA Spokesman Stéphane Malépart said he couldn't give details about Mugesera's flight back to Rwanda. Louise Mushikiwabo, Rwanda's minister of foreign affairs and international co-operation, tweeted: "Léon Mugesera is now airborne for Kigali! Thank ordinary ppl in Canada who saw thru confusion in int'l legal labyrinth and said 'he must go.'"

ALLEGED WAR CRIMINAL PLEADS FOR MERCY, ASYLUM : 'HAS EVIDENCE OF FEAR'

(Adrian Humphreys)

A Rwandan man, the eldest son of a convicted war criminal, has won another chance to plead for mercy and remain in Canada after a Federal Court judge questioned his fate if returned to his homeland. He claimed asylum, saying his Hutu background saved him from death but the Immigration and Refugee Board determined he was ineligible as someone believed to be complicit in crimes against humanity or war crimes. He had lost his appeal and submitted a second pre-removal assessment, claiming that media coverage of his case had put him in even more jeopardy. In a decision published Monday, Justice Roger T. Hughes agreed with Mr. Teganya that officials did not adequately appraise his evidence of fear.

BORDER CHANGES START THIS YEAR : PILOT PROJECTS BEGIN ROLLOUT

Canadians will start feeling the benefits this year of a new Canada-U.S border deal designed to better guard against terrorism and speed up cross-border traffic, says a senior U.S. official. The prediction was made Monday during an interview with Postmedia News by David Heyman, Assistant Secretary for policy at the U.S. Department of Homeland Security. Heyman was in Ottawa meeting with Canadian officials and others to discuss Canada-U.S. issues - notably the Beyond the Border action plan announced in December by Prime Minister Stephen Harper and U.S. President Barack Obama. The success of the new strategy will hinge on the results of the pilot projects that will be rolled out over the next two years.

I FEAR MY HOMELAND: OCEAN LADY CLAIMANT : FIRST IRB HEARING

(Stewart Bell)

More than two years after the smuggling ship MV Ocean Lady arrived off the West Coast carrying 76 Sri Lankan asylum seekers, the first public hearing to determine whether to accept them as refugees took place on Monday. Stopping human smuggling ships became a government priority after the arrivals of the Ocean Lady and the MV Sun Sea, which reached Canada in 10 months carrying 492 Sri Lankans. A Conservatives anti-human smuggling act is now before Parliament. While the bill has not yet become law, federal lawyers appear to be paying close attention to the Ocean Lady hearings. The Canada Border Services Agency has filed notice that it intends to intervene in each of the 76 cases. A decision is not expected until at least next month.

Fuelling the fires of intolerance

Howard Elliott

Anti-immigration sentiment, racism and xenophobia continue to be present in our community and country at disturbing levels. Hamilton assistant Crown attorney, Toni Skarica, shone a light on just such a problem last week when he made a statement during the court appearance of a woman related to several Hungarian refugees charged with human trafficking. "Disgusting, stunning, shocking" was some of the more dramatic language he used while describing flaws in Canada's refugee and welfare systems that allowed a group of Hungarian Roma criminals to live in Hamilton and get paid for it. For 18 months she collected benefits here. Had it not been for the human trafficking investigation, she might continue to do so today.
